

Back in early March, in the early days of the pandemic, HR Project Partners donated $2500 to the United Way Atlantic Canada Compassionate Fund.

As a result of this fund, United Way NL has donated approximately $80K to multiple organizations throughout the province impacted by Covid-19. They still have more to donate as this pandemic continues. Any organization or individual can also donate towards this fund and can request that their donation stay in Newfoundland and Labrador.

HR Project Partners is a proud supporter of United Way NL. They volunteer time, their employees participate in a payroll deductions/match program and HRPP provides annual donations to United Way NL. They felt very fortunate to be able to donate at this time to support the valuable work of United Way NL and help those impacted by the pandemic within our province. View additional information or donate to the fund.

Atlantic Compassion Fund

Homelessness, food insecurity, mental illness and precarious employment are difficult things to have to experience. Now, as public health measures are taken across the region in response to COVID-19, people who were already vulnerable are facing major disruptions and new risks – and many are in crisis right now.

Now, more than ever, we need to pull together to support those who need it most. The Atlantic Compassion Fund will help us do exactly that.

This Atlantic-wide fund – managed by United Way Halifax in collaboration with other United Ways across the region – will help meet basic needs, reduce the impact of further marginalization and bring people back together when the time is right.

You can select the region you want the funding to go to.